Test 400

A significant number of reports of Test 400 causing tenderness, swelling, redness and soreness around the injection site have come to our attention. These symptoms may last for up to a week.

The products involved have the brand name Isis.

Reports so far have mainly come from the Yorkshire and North East regions.

It is likely that these side effects are caused by adulterants, poor quality products (possible copies or inferior underground laboratories) or contain high levels of benzyl alcohol (a co-solvent sometimes added to make solutions less viscous).

If in doubt do not use this product.

If you experience any problems stop using this product. Seek medical attention should side effects persist or worsen.
